NOBODY QUITE LIKE AIDA.

World-famed Soubrette in a Class by Herself—Second Successful Week at the Pekin Theater Shows the Popularity of the Star.

BRILLIANT COMPANY MAKES GOOD.

Director Will H. Vodery and His Well-Balanced Orchestra, the Clever Entertainers Individually and Collectively, Everything is Good—Matinee for Charity.

By J. Hockley Smiley.

Aida Overton Walker and her brilliant company close their second week's engagement at the Pekin Theater Sunday night, and repair to the lights and hopes of dear old New York after a fortnight of success in every way.

The first week's "overwhelming business" has already been told and to chronicle the second week means to tell the unusual story of how a management was compelled to continue a theatrical venture, so great was the demand. "By request" read their bills and posters announcing the second week, but really no sane manager could have resisted the demand.

Good Crowds All Week.

Both star and company improved with the coming of the second week. That harmony so essential between orchestra pit, stage and electricians was soon brought out and every one was pleased. As a reward, the effort was accorded crowded houses the early part of the week and comfortable crowds at every performance. The benefit matinee for the Old Folks' Home occurs too late for mention in this article.

For once the theatrical critics omitted the detailed and technical write-ups usually accorded even less pretentious organizations, and summed everything up in the one word "good." And their praise was well merited, for fine it was from start to finish. Black Carl, the magician, like the wine he served, improves with age. He is certainly a wonder. Baily and Teare realized that their turn was a good one and reciprocated by doing their best.

Capable Artists—Clever Dancers.

Reed and Marshall should stick together. Theater goers will be delighted and they will always be booked solid. Mr. Louis Sanlebury won many friends by his clever work. He appeared to advantage as Mrs. Walker's support in "La Rumba." The girls were above the average, they put enthusiasm into their work and held up in fine style that all important end of such entertainments. Miss Hazel Thompson came back to us a finished artist. She was warmly welcomed.

Miss Sallie Green Byrd, the soloist, became a genuine favorite. She will always be welcome in Chicago. Delightfully artistic and subdued was the work of the well balanced orchestra, under the direction of Mr. Will H. Vodery. Its work was perhaps shown to better effect in its beautiful accompaniment to Mrs. Walker's song, "Chalky White Eyes." But it was equally as effective in "Reminiscence" snatches of tunes of other days.

Nobody Quite Like Aida.

A word about the star, Aida Overton Walker. Nobody is quite like Aida. No matter how often you see her, nobody so delightfully surprises you as she does. It may be in the same song or a repetition of your favorite dance, but there is always a little something, maybe a little chic movement, a tantalizing wink or a new gesture, but you will surely see it and be pleased. During the second week Mrs. Walker added many catchy bits to her costumes, for instance, the buckles and garter in the last set, when she wears that stunning black gown.

Clever and adroit is her dancing, her singing is formidable, and as long as nature endows her with her present ability there will be no one to take her place. Chicago fan lovers have been entertained, that's usual; they have also been entirely pleased, that's unusual. Financially it set a new pace in things theatrical. All in all, it was a typical Chicago success.

Notes of the Show.

Among those who witnessed the show Tuesday night was Mr. Norman Ward of Glencoe, Ill. Mr. Ward is a young, energetic citizen of that suburb who has made a success of the garbage and general hauling business. He declared "that he felt more at home in the Pekin than he did in any other theater."

Mr. S. B. Turner, editor of the "Illinois Idea," had a box party Tuesday night. Among his guests were Mr. Julius Rosenswartz, assistant state's attorney, and Mr. Michael Joseph Sullivan, an attorney for the Illinois Central R. R. Co.

Aida Overton Walker received many beautiful flowers this week, but none more attractive than the large bouquet of chrysanthemums Tuesday night, the gift of a well known professional friend. The name of the donor is withheld at her request.

THE ALPHA SUFFRAGE CLUB TO GIVE A BANQUET.

The Alpha Suffrage Club is an organization of Colored women that is not only studying political and civic questions for themselves, but they are making a strong effort to get hold of every Colored woman in the city of Chicago. This club was organized last January, and has done some notable work in the first year of its existence. We have one hundred members and taking in new ones every day. It was this club which sent me to Washington City last March to represent it in the suffrage parade. It was this club which has held the only suffrage meeting for the benefit of the women in the bridewell, since the ballot was granted to the women of Illinois. It was this club which had thirty-five women in the automobile suffrage parade July 1st last. This number was gotten together with only two days notice.

And now this club will celebrate its first year of existence by an annual dinner, at the Progressive Club, 19 W. Jackson Blvd., next Wednesday evening, November 19th. Plates are $1.00 each. Not only will there be splendid addresses by Miss Jane Addams, Mrs. Grace Wilbur Trout, Mrs. Virginia Brooks-Washburne, Mrs. Antoinette Funk, Mrs. L. S. Bishop and other prominent suffrage workers, but Mrs. Nina T. Curtis, assistant to County Judge Owens, will make the chief address and show every woman present how to use the voting machine which is installed in the beautiful room at the Progressive Club.

Our tickets are selling fast. Our number is limited. We want every Negro woman in the city of Chicago who is interested in the ballot to be present, and we are enlisting your aid in reaching them. Everybody who wishes to be present must secure tickets by November 16th. Tickets can be had of Miss L. T. Curtis, at the Reading Room of the Negro Fellowship League, 3005 State St., any hour of the day between 9 and 5 o'clock.

Gratefully yours,
Ida B. Wells Barnett.

THE STORE HAS ALREADY VISITED THE HOME OF MR. AND MRS. MADISON DAVIS CAREY.

As it was exclusively stated in the columns of The Broad Ax last week; that Madison Davis Carey, the eldest son of Rev. and Mrs. A. J. Carey, who is at the present time out of the city attending school and Miss Marguerite C. Polk, were united in marriage on September 16, without the consent of his parents and that the store would soon pay a visit to the new bride.

This was more than true for the first part of this week; Dr. Stork, made a home run or beat it to young Mrs. Carey; and presented the newly married couple with a healthy, bouncing baby boy.

COMPLETE LIST OF THE PRESENTS. GIFTS FROM MANY STATES. SOME SEND MONEY, OTHERS RICH CUT GLASS, SILVERWARE AND LINEN. A GREAT VARIETY OF USEFUL AND ORNAMENTAL ARTICLES. ADVENTIST CHURCH PRESENTS HANDSOME ART DOME.

The Snowden-Porter wedding Tuesday evening, November 4th, was noted for its sweet "old fashioned" simplicity as published exclusively in The Broad Ax Saturday, November 8th. The bridal party consisted of the bride's mother, Mrs. Anna Hudlun, her brother, Mr. Joseph H. Hudlun, her son, Mr. Joseph Snowden, and her two sisters, Mrs. Mary L. Watkins and Mrs. Hattie B. Turner. The attendants were as follows: Matron of honor, Mrs. William E. Nun of Cincinnati; Attorney W. G. Anderson, best man, flower girls, the bride's two little grand nieces, Florence and Mabel Turner.

The bride wore a princess gown en traine of Honiton lace over white chamoise, with pearl ornaments, and carried a shower bouquet of bridal roses and lilies of the valley.

Off for the Reception.

Immediately after the close of the ceremony, amid congratulations of friends and family and a shower of rice, the party filed down the broad stairway to the street, where awaited the autos to bear the happy couple to their future home at 3302 Rhodes avenue, which was also to be the second scene of this eventful occasion, the reception held for the eight hundred guests, who were invited, the majority of whom responded in person.

Inside the beautiful home under the nimble fingers of Mrs. D. Manley (our own friend "Dink") had blossomed into a scene from fairy land. The decoration color scheme all over the house was green and yellow.

Ferns and Chrysanthemums Everywhere.

The walls and ceiling were garlanded with wild smilax and baby chrysanthemums, and great bowls and vases of ferns and chrysanthemums resting here and there on tables and mantels. The dainty refreshments were dispensed in the dining room and were presided over by Mr. and Mrs. James Wheeler, dear friends of the bride and groom. Assisting them were Miss Hazel Jackson, cousin of the bride, and the Misses Dorothy Davis and Ada Johnson.

Attorney W. G. Anderson was master of ceremonies, and Mrs. Ruben Elam, Mrs. Mattie Johnson Young, Mrs. Alberta Moore Smith were in the receiving party. The presents were presided over by Mrs. Bessie Nance, and Mrs. Marguerite Immanuel, Mr. A. N. Fields and Mr. Lawrence A. Newby received the gentlemen in the smoker.

Distinguished Among Those Present.

Noted among the throng of guests were Mrs. Jennie Tyly and Mrs. J. M. Barnard of the Juvenile Court, and Mr. Albert Smith, of the Board of Trade; this gentleman kindly consented to entertain the assembly for a few minutes in character sketches from the Ghetto, the political arena and the German village. Among the numerous elegantly gowned ladies noticeable were Mrs. Lydia Howies, Mrs. Ruben Elam, Mrs. Alberta Moore Smith, Mrs. Joseph L. Watkins, Miss Anna Hudlun and Miss Mary E. Hunter. The reporter overheard some one remark, "Who is the little lady beside the tall girl in pink? She reminds me of a charming old fashioned picture." "Why, that is Mrs. William H. Hudlun and her daughter, Irene Bagnice."

Mrs. Nance Gets the Bride's Bouquet.

Among the concluding features that were well received were brief addresses by the groom and Attorney W. G. Anderson. The guests kindly excused the bride from this very trying ordeal. Just before the departure of the latest arrivals, the bride modestly mounted the stairway and threw her bouquet down to the eagerly expectant faces and outstretched hands below. Mrs. Bessie Nance was the fortunate individual. In every detail it was indeed one of the most delightful and interesting weddings of the season, and because of the prominence in official life of both contracting parties will be long remembered by all Chicagoans.

Telegrams and Acknowledgments.

Among the many telegrams and acknowledgments received from many states were noted these: Ex-Governor Yates of Springfield, Ill.; Mr. and Mrs. Frank O. Lowden, of Oregon, Ill.; Mr. and Mrs. Frank Hamilton Funk of Bloomington, Ill.; Ex-Mayor and Mrs. Fred Busse; Mr. J. W. Wakes, president of Chicago waiters' union; Congressman James E. MISS GRACE KNIGHTEN TOASTS PRESIDENT WILSON.

Well Known Chicago Woman Represents America at a Dinner given by The Maharane of Tikari, India, in Australia.

Sydney, Australia, Oct.—Miss Grace Knighten of Chicago, lady-in-waiting or secretary to the Maharane of Tikari, India, was a guest at a birthday dinner that the Maharane gave a number of her friends. Miss Knighten representing America, toasted President Woodrow Wilson. The Theatre Magazine, published in Sydney and Melbourne, prints this account of the dinner.

"The Maharane of Tikari, gave a most enjoyable dinner party to seventy-five of her relatives and friends in the drawing-room of the Hotel Australia, (Sydney) on August 2.

It was Fred Nible who asked the gathering to drink the health of the Maharane. "May she," he said, "live as long as she is happy; and—may she always be happy!"

The Smart Set Orchestra Plays.

The Maharane was dressed in a Paris model frock of cream and turquoise silk of the richest quality. With this she wore a cream silk toque from which arose a little forest of osprey. Music was supplied by an orchestra that has selected as its name, "The Smart Set." The Maharane infected all with the light, happy spirit of the occasion by dancing a cake walk, first with her father; then with her bright, engaging Indian secretary, Miss Knighten; and finally with Mr. Nible.

In the course of the dinner the Maharane, with airy persinage, said there were a lot of toasts to be honored. We have, she went on, "to drink the health of the King, the health of the Queen, the health of the Duke of York, and the health of the whole royal family. Further as we have in my maid a German we must drink the Kaiser's health, and as we have in Miss Knighten an American, we must drink the President's health. After that the manager of the hotel, Mr. Smith, will provide free beds for all."

Guests Guess at Birthday.

Edwin Geach proposed the health of the Maharane's parents—Mr. and Mrs. Thompson. He said the occasion was the Maharane's birthday—her nineteenth birthday he believed.

Dr. Morgan Smith (correctly): No; the seventeenth.

In supporting the toast, Mr. De Groen proved to be the star-speaker of the day. He remarked that as a conductor it was by his back he was best known to the public.

The Maharane: And a very beautiful back it is.

Mr. De Groen went on to say that for very many years Mr. and Mrs. Thompson and the Maharane, had been friends of his, in the truest, fullest sense of the word. He referred to the long period for which Mr. Thompson, sent, was returning officer for North Sydney, and added that such were Mr. Thompson's platform abilities that it had always been a wonder to him that he did not find his way into Parliament.

Met Miss Knighten in London.

When it came to the Maharane's own toast she asked Ellis Price to reply for her. At an earlier stage of the proceedings Mr. Price delighted the gathering with a most ably-given recitation. Mr. Price remarked that when he was a boy the Maharane was a mere infant.

The Maharane: (smilingly): Thank you!

Mr. Price: Don't mention it. It is not the first untruth I have told by any means.

Such was the easy light-hearted genuinely happy character of the gathering that it must prove a memorable one to all participating in it.

The Maharane is English, and was very intimate with Miss Knighten while she lived in London. When she married the Prince of Tikari, she made Miss Knighten her secretary, and they have been inseparable ever since.

HOPE PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH.

61st and Loomis Blvd. Rev. C. Lee Jefferson, D. D. Pastor.

A very instructive illustrated lecture on Proper Housing was given in Hope Presbyterian Church on last Friday evening, under the auspices of the Pandora Girls' Club, who also rendered a very interesting musical program.

The Christian Endeavor service of last Sunday was led by Mr. Julius G. Brumfield, who gave a very interesting talk on The Christian Home. All young people are welcomed to this service.

The services were largely attended on last Sunday and everybody enjoyed two good sermons by the pastor, Dr. C. Lee Jefferson, on the subjects: "Prayer Habit of Jesus Christ, and Christian Forbearance."

The pastor commended the people for their success in meeting the financial obligations and exhorted them to make this a year of prayer for greater progress in Christian growth.

Miss Maria G. Jefferson.
